Amazing Health Solutions, a health and nutrition company based in Catonsville, Maryland, is proud to announce that they have joined Twitter. The company believes that this is an essential social media tool that will help them share information about health and fitness. Those who are interested in taking a look at this information can follow them at http://twitter.com/AmazingHealth7.

"Twitter is an effective medium for communicating to people," says Ronald Hoff from Amazing Health Solutions. "We know that many of our customers already use the platform, so it is an opportunity for them to be kept up to date with health and fitness data, tips and other pieces of useful information. Essentially, we want to use the tool to promote overall wellness."

The company has already been very active on the platform, posting over 400 Tweets. Furthermore, since having been launched, they have already gained a significant following. It clearly shows that the company is passionate about health and fitness and that they want to help others to gain important insights within this particular field.

The Tweets that have been posted so far include inspirational quotes and memes about living a health lifestyle. Additionally, they have posted a special offer on their Forskolin product, which is a supplement that helps people lose weight by suppressing appetite and increasing energy. The Forskolin extract is the company's flagship product that has proven to be very popular to date.

"Our Twitter account gives people the opportunity to learn more about Forskolin and how it works," adds Ronald Hoff. "However, it is also an opportunity for people to share information on health and wellness and to motivate each other to reach their goals."

Further information about Amazing Health Solutions and their product can be found on the company website on http://amazinghealthsolutions.com. The Twitter account can be used for information on a variety of topics. For instance, a current trending post is on how vegetarian bodybuilders are able to get the nutrition they need in order to still achieve their goals. It also includes important information, such as a reminder to people to drink enough water.
