September 26, 2016 -

The Law Office of Roger A. Giuliani, P.C. in Las Vegas, Nevada, has announced a new office location. The firm has recently opened an office in Henderson, Nevada, and is focusing its efforts on obtaining more probate clients. Mr. Giuliani has helped hundreds of people in their probate and estate planning matters and is looking forward to making these areas of law more accessible to the people of Henderson, Nevada. Mr. Giuliani has received a number of five star recommendations from both past and present clients and strives to keep his clients best interests at heart.

In addition to probate and estate planning matters, Mr. Giuliani offers full service representation on all family law matters including divorce, custody, adoptions, and termination of parental rights. In addition to practing law, Mr. Giuliani is also a Certified Family Court Mediator for the Eighth District Court and provides representation for business and corporate planning, bankruptcy, estate planning, and probate. "We're pleased to have our new office location opened, and want to invite clients from the Henderson area to contact us to schedule an initial consultation," says Giuliani.

Giuliani was the first Certified Family Court Mediator for Clark County, gaining certification in 2003. Since that time, he has represented hundreds of cases for families throughout the southern region of the state. He says, "Our aim is to provide probate and other legal assistance to those in Henderson and around the area, people who normally wouldn't want to come all the way to our first office location." Roger Giuliani received his Juris Doctor degree in 1995 from the City University of New York Law School. He is currently licensed to practice law in Nevada as well as New York and Connecticut. Mr. Giuliani also has experience in real estate and various other legal areas. He suggests that those interested, contact the office to learn more about the areas of practice that the law firm offers.

Giuliani states that Las Vegas clients will still receive the same quality of legal representation as before, and that adding this new office location will in no way take away from the original location or its services. Clients can now visit the attorney at either location and can call either office to schedule a consultation.

Those interested in learning more about the legal representation that The Law Office of Roger A. Giuliani, P.C. can provide can also visit the law firm on their official website at rogergiulianilaw.com.
