

Medicare For Her Releases Video On Medicare Part B Premium 2017

January 03, 2017

Charlotte, NC business Medicare For Her is focused on providing women with all the information they need in order to be able to make the right decisions about the health insurance plans that work best for them. To achieve this, they regularly release videos on their website and YouTube channel, where they answer questions. In their latest video, "Medicare Part B Premium 2017: Increase From Premiums 2016", they discuss the premium increases for those who have Medicare Part B. This video is available at YouTube at <https://youtu.be/FCzk-yEFgH8>.

Tripp Jordan from Medicare for Her says: "In today's episode, we talk about how the Medicare Part B premium is changing in 2017 from what it was in 2016. Even though we are based in North Carolina, we service clients all over the country, and this new increase encompasses every state."

Every episode that the company has released is also listed on the company's own website, with the latest video found at <http://www.medicareforher.com/part-b-premium-2017/>. For each video, transcripts are provided so that those who have hearing difficulties can still access the information as well. They have done this because they want to empower every woman to be able to make the right decisions when it comes to their healthcare and financial needs, and to ensure they are able to navigate through the complex world of health insurance. The Medicare Part B is generally deducted straight from people's social security benefits.

"As we are shooting this in late 2016, the premium is currently at 121 dollars and 80 cents," adds Tripp Jordan. "Starting in January 2017 it will be 134 dollars, but there is kind of a caveat to that. If you allow Social Security to deduct your Medicare Part B premium, it will average out to be about 109 dollars."

The premium, Medicare For Her warns, can also be higher depending on income and marital status. Because of this complexity and, in some cases, confusion, people are encouraged to like the company's Facebook page, <https://www.facebook.com/medicareforher>, and join in on the conversation or ask questions.
