Fort Collins Water Damage and Restoration offers personnel and procedures to take care of the results of floods, water leaks and other water damage issues. Water damage is the number one disaster experienced annually in the U.S.

Fort Collins CO: Fort Collins Water Damage and Restoration and Mike Schwartz are pleased to announce the launch of the business to take care of water damage in and around Fort Collins. Floods are a common cause of water damage. Each year, billions of dollars worth of flood claims are settled nationwide. The damages may be caused by burst pipe, flood water or storms. The professionals at the firm can address a range of water damage events with accuracy and efficiency.

According to the water damage Fort Collins professional spokesperson, "Don't let water devastate your building and everything in it. Ignoring a swollen foundation, a crack or a shift in your wall can lead to a breakage of your electric system adding more to your water disaster. If you notice a leak or a pool of water on your floor, do not settle for a simple mop up. A case of water damage will put a halt to your business operations, disrupt your daily home routines as well as hinder you from performing the tasks that you survive by."

The residents of Fort Collins can contact the firm's experts to handle water damage issues. The trained staff are experienced and proficient in water damage repair. The experts offer a step-by-step approach to getting customers back to full operation following a water damage event. The multi-step process for water damage restoration begins with the removal of standing water.

Additional steps in the process include minimizing the loss. Specifically, all flooring materials including underlayment, floor padding, carpets and tiles are removed. This step ensures that molds don't grow due to the dampness. The professionals do everything possible to salvage the customers items so the the amount of possessions which must be replaced is reduced to a minimum. The restoration of personal possessions such as documents and photos is another step in the process.
