March 07, 2017 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Rip Toned Fitness in Las Vegas, Nevada, has announced their weightlifting gloves are now available on the Amazon marketplace. The company recently stated their gloves can now be ordered from Amazon and are available in a number of colors, which are blue, green, peach, pink, and classic black.

"We are excited to announce our gloves are now live for sale on amazon.com," says Mark Pasay with Rip Toned Fitness. "The colors are perfect for men and women, and the gloves themselves are of the same high quality as all of the products we offer."

Rip Toned Fitness offers a number of fitness products as well as various instructional videos on YouTube. In addition to the newly added weightlifting gloves, the company also offers weightlifting belts, lifting straps, wrist wraps and a number of other fitness related products.

The weightlifting gloves are made from quality goat leather, which the company states offers the power to comfortably lift weights. They are designed to be used by bodybuilders, weightlifters, and power lifters. They feature an elastic strap that is flexible for comfort and four way stretch netting fabric that Pasay says offers ventilation to avoid sweat in the hands and palms.

"We design all of our products to offer safety as well as style," Pasay states. "Our new gloves are certainly no exception and feature double stitching to make them last longer and withstand the heaviest pressure without issues."

Rip Toned Fitness is an innovative company that provides quality fitness products to customers. The company states they offer quality yet affordable products to meet the needs of all of their customers, and back every purchase with their solid customer service guarantee. A relatively new company, Rip Toned has already made several strides in the fitness industry with a number of products that are designed to help fitness enthusiasts workout without worries of injuries.

Pasay says the company only offers products they know will withstand the wear and tear customers put them through. Those interested in learning more about the company and the array of fitness products they offer can visit the official Rip Toned website.
