IM Consultant Services Releases New Valentus Review

May 01, 2017

May 01, 2017 -
Cincinnati, OH consultancy and digital marketing agency IM Consultant Services, has recently published a review of a home business opportunity, which is called Valentus. The digital marketing company is a provider of services designed to help people market all types of home businesses, with a particular focus on training them in marketing their opportunity online.

"Valentus is a network marketing company founded in 2014 by Dave Jordan who also serves as the company's CEO," says Mike Marko, founder of IM Consultant Services. "They offer a wealth of wellness products for which there is a high demand in the market, making this a fantastic home business opportunity. I was very keen to write the review as a non-affiliate of the business opportunity, which serves to provide an objective view of the business."

In the Valentus review, Marko goes into great detail about the compensation plan that the company offers. In fact, this is one of the elements that he believes makes the opportunity such an interesting one. Earning potential comes from retail commissions, the fast start bonus, the legacy coded bonus, dual team commissions, the dual team matching bonus, the 1% Global Volume Shared Enrollment Pool, and the vehicle bonus. As such, Marko makes it clear that the harder people focus on building their business, the more earning potential they have.

Marko also discusses the various products that form part of the opportunity. These include the Prevail Slimroast, the Prevail Trim, the Prevail Energy, and the Prevail Immune Boost. Marko says: "These four main products all focus on health and wellness, which is a huge market right now. As such, I believe that Valentus offers a great opportunity for people to build a home based business, particularly when considering their interesting compensation plan. However, no home based business will ever be successful unless they also know how to market not just the Valentus products but also the opportunity, and that is where I come in."

IM Consultant Services currently offers a free bootcamp training package, whereby people can learn how to market their online home business. Mike Marko also delivers personalized training and other forms of assistance to those who want to become successful.
