BridalKare International, is the only company in the country that offers a wedding dress cleaning and preservation service with an exclusive 11 step process. This process is guaranteed to clean wedding dresses, removing all the stains. After individual cleaning and pressing, the dress will look like new once again. They hope that by highlighting their process, they will give more people the opportunity to preserve their wedding or special occasion dresses.

"Whatever reason you have to clean and preserve your wedding dress you want to know you can trust the company who will do that for you," says Bev Zambino from BridalKare International. "We are perhaps the most trusted company in the country and we have achieved this by treating each and every Wedding Dress entrusted to us by Mothers and Brides Like You, as the Unique and Cherished Heirloom that it is."

This wedding gown preservation 11 step process has been designed over the past 125 years through the development of truly unique and gentle chemicals, as well as a number of very careful methods of stain removal. The family run business is now able to remove all types of stains, including perspiration stains, grass stains, champagne stains, asphalt parking lot oils and more. They are ready to take on any type of stain and will remove it, restoring the dress to its original beauty.

The dress is first checked in at the business. It is then hand cleaned along the hem, neckline and underarms. Once this has been completed, the dress is placed under a black light to reveal hidden stains. It is then completely cleaned with an exclusive process that will also stop the dress from turning yellow over time. The dress is then inspected again, and if any more stains are found, the process is repeated. At this point, any minore repairs are made free to restore the dress, after which it gets steamed and hand pressed. Once completed, the bodice is shaped and placed on an acid free bust form so it once again looks completely new. Both the skirt and bodice are then layered with acid free tissue paper. Once completed, the dress is placed in a windowed display box, which is then sent back to the dress owner.

"As a family owned business, we have 125 years of experience in the wedding dress cleaning and perservation of business", adds Bev Zambino. "We know what works and we offer this exclusive wedding dress cleaning and preservation to our customers for just $147, including shipping."

The wedding gown preservation process offered by BridalKare International has shown proven results. Indeed, the company has received glowing reviews to attest to this. Almost any dress can be restored and preserved, no matter it's age. The company take particular pride in successfully working on vintage dresses no matter the age.
