June 29, 2017 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

An online business that sells dog products has announced that a section of the company website is now dedicated specifically to the French bulldog. The Shop by French Bulldog section of the site features the company's latest line of products and offers items not for the dogs, but rather for their owners. These include earrings, bracelets, cushions, paintings, vinyl stickers, and key chains, to name but a few.

A representative from the company says: "Roger Caras once said 'Dogs are not our whole lives, but they make our lives whole' and we wholeheartedly agree with that. Owning a dog means looking after a member of a family, while also celebrating its presence. The French bulldog is a fantastic breed of dog and we now offer our customers the opportunity to celebrate this love through a variety of products for themselves and their home."

The online business, which is known as The Top Dog Deals, offers a range of breed-specific products, including the beagle, the boxer, the English bulldog, the German shepherd, the golden retriever, the Labrador retriever, the poodle, the Rottweiler, and the Yorkshire terrier. The new line of French Bulldog products is just the latest in a long list. It came about as a result of several customer requests.

"We have a pop-up on our website that asks clients for ways to improve the site or things they would like to see included," explains the company representative. "We have received numerous requests for French Bulldog products, and we were all too happy to oblige."

To further enhance the overall customer experience, The Top Dog Deals has also launched a Facebook page. This provides people with further opportunities to request products, and also to discuss their love of dogs, share photographs and information, and more. The company, meanwhile, uses the Facebook page to provide interesting information and advice to dog lovers the world over. The representative further explains: "Serving the needs of dog owning men and women around the world, The Top Dog Deals is a customer-centric company focused on offering quality products and friendly service every time you visit our site."
