<http://charlottehomeexperts.com/Charlotte>, North Carolina, July 7, 2017 - There is a lot to consider when buying a home and finding the right realtor in Charlotte, NC is just the first step. Securing a mortgage can be a complicated process but the realtors at Charlotte Home Experts offer a few key pieces of advice.

The first step is finding the right lender. A real estate agent in Charlotte, NC can provide suggestions but the prospective buyer needs to compare interest rates between lenders as they can vary greatly, check what loans are offered and which ones he or she qualifies for, and how long it takes the lender to close.

Pre-qualified and pre-approval are not the same things. Pre-qualified is good but mean more paperwork is required while pre-approval means the buyer's financial and credit history has been evaluated and they are close to getting the home of their dreams.

The final step is signing lending disclosures. The lender will then issue a loan estimate and request an appraisal, as well as collect bank statements, tax documents and any other information they need. Once it all checks out a mortgage is issued in a matter of weeks.

Charlotte Home Experts is the place to go for people saying, "Sell my home fast in Charlotte." Experienced local realtors guide their clients through the buying and selling process, making it as easy and hassle-free as possible.
