Kramer Plumbing and Radiant Heat, a business in Edmonton, Alberta, Canada, believes in supporting the elderly population, for which it is particularly important to have adequate heating in place. Hence, they have been providing a discount of 10% for senior citizens. The company is now happy to announce that they have now raised this discount to 15%, which represents a 50% increase from the previous discount. Full details are available on the company's website at https://kramerplumbingandradiantheat.com/.

Kelly Kramer, owner and founder of Kramer Plumbing and Radiant Heat, says: "As a way to help seniors in Edmonton and surrounding areas we have decided to increase our discount for seniors from 10% to 15% off labor. This was something that we have been thinking about for quite some time and so we finally decided that it was time to put it into action."

Edmonton's type of climate is prairie-steppe, which means that it gets a lot of sunshine, even during winter, but the nights are quite cool even during the summer. Furthermore, it has a long winter season, which gets very cold. In fact, on average, there are 141 days each year where the snow depth is greater than one centimeter. Kelly Kramer adds: "Compare this to Vancouver, which gets 10 days; Penticton, which gets 35 days; Toronto, which gets 65 days; Calgary, which gets 88 days; or Ottawa, which gets 120 days, and it quickly becomes apparent how harsh and cold our climate is, especially during winter."

Indeed, senior citizens often find themselves in situations where they have to choose between heating and eating. Their heating systems and boilers are often dated and they do not have the funds to replace them. This is the main reason why Kramer Plumbing and Radiant Heat had decided to offer a discount in the first place, and why they have now decided to increase it. Kelly explains: "It just wasn't enough. The weather in Edmonton changes so often and everybody here knows that it is pretty much impossible to predict what the weather will be. I want to encourage Edmonton seniors to contact us today to have their heating put in order."
