Baltimore Plastic Surgeon Posts New Blog Explaining the Increased Popularity of Neck Lifts

August 28, 2017

August 28, 2017 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Baltimore, MD - Dr. Jeffrey Schreiber, who performs plastic surgery in Baltimore, has noticed that he and his colleagues are seeing more and more patients coming to them requesting neck lifts. In his most recent blog post, the cosmetic surgeon examines the reasons for the uptick.

The doctor explains that he decided to tackle this subject in his blog because for a while the procedure was not one that was commonly discussed. Recently, as more patients, both male and female, have been turning to cosmetic procedures to regain a youthful look, they are also more willing to explore all of their options. Dr. Schreiber believes that his post will allow his current and future patients to better understand their treatment options.

The new blog aims to provide those considering cosmetic procedures with facts and statistics that will help them make an informed decision should they decide to meet with a surgeon and develop a treatment plan.

More information regarding the rising numbers of neck lift procedures can be found in Dr. Schreiber's blog on his site, which also contains information on a variety of other cosmetic procedures.

Dr. Jeffrey Schreiber performs everything from breast augmentation to facial rejuvenation in Baltimore. Anyone with questions regarding cosmetic surgery, including a facelift in Baltimore, or who would like to schedule a consultation can contact Baltimore Plastic Surgery.
