Villa Montessori Preschool applies the Montessori Method. The Montessori Method was developed by Dr. Maria Montessori. Dr. Montessori began her work with child psychiatric patients in Rome and she helped to revolutionize early childhood education through her approach to pediatric learning. Montessori found that children naturally want to learn and to explore their environments, which has led to the type of education followed by the Montessori method. Children learning under this program are taught through nature, art and other aspects that are all hands on and project oriented.

The Montessori Method is founded on a principle of watching children to see what and how they want to learn. Education is provided on an individual basis and allows each child to learn on his or her own and experience the joys of self discovery. Teachers act as guides to aid the children in their learning but the children basically choose their education themselves. There are lessons with this method but the overall goal is to allow the children to discover their own answers by using materials that are self correcting. The preschool says that this method has worked very well for them and their students and parents seem to agree, according to the latest review of the school.

Studies done on the Montessori Method suggest that it is a very effective platform for teaching young children. Children using this educational program discover how to solve complex math problems, identify geometric shapes, speak properly, write properly and learn about a number of other topics. Studies have been done extensively on the Montessori Method and all of them conclusively show that children thrive in their education using this method of learning. The Montessori Method encourages exploration, which children love. Materials used are designed to work specifically with this method of learning. Not all preschools currently use the Montessori Method and the school states that they are pleased to be doing so. They have seen many children move on to elementary school and excel in their classes after being taught through this method.

Villa Montessori Preschool states that they are always happy to see positive reviews from the parents of their students. The school says that those who are interested in reading these reviews or in watching the video reviews can visit them on their official website or on their Facebook page to learn more. Those interested in learning more about the Montessori Method of learning can also read more on that topic on the preschool's official website or on the Montessori website.
