

Garage Door Installation In Tucson Celebrates New Rave Review

November 26, 2018

Discount Door Service, a garage door installation and repair service based out of Tucson, Arizona, is proud to announce the posting of a 5-star review on Yelp. The company boasts a 5-star rating overall on the review website and is pleased to see their customers post about how satisfied they are with the company's services. The review was posted on October 1st, 2018 by Dru P. from Tucson, describing the installation of a new garage door in her house.

Melissa MacMeans from Discount Garage Door says, "Getting a brand new garage door installed should be just as important as any other kind of construction on the home, because it's something that's going to be used over and over again." She notes that in the Tucson area, garage doors tend to have problems due to weather and regular wear and tear. "Sometimes the system is old, and it's time to just have a whole new system installed like Dru P. and her partner David did." The announcement of Discount Doors garage door installation service can be seen in this Tucson Press Release.

In the 5-star Yelp review Dru says, "David and I never make a decision without exhaustive research, multiple bids, and reference-checking. Discount Door Service rose to the top in every area."

MacMeans says that garage doors can sometimes be taken for granted when it comes to installation and repair. "Many people just don't know where to start when it comes to what kind of garage door they need, because not all doors are the same, and not all garages are the same," she says. She notes that the age of the house and the construction of the garage can mean different kinds of features should be taken into account. "Most garage doors have over 300 moving parts to them and can weigh upwards of 400 pounds. And with your smartphone, you can open your garage door with a press of your finger on your screen. We can help you find the door that's best for your house and your use."

Dru says that MacMeans was especially helpful when it came to finding the right garage door in Tucson. "Melissa carefully presented the pros and cons in several areas so we could make the correct garage door choice, and Eddie had the door properly installed in a few hours. All our questions were quickly answered," she writes in the review. "Even though we called several times to ask more questions (New garage doors don't have outside handles!) Melissa patiently answered each query. When we had difficulty downloading the garage door app on our phones, someone was here to help within the hour. This kind of service is hard to come by in Tucson."

Like any kind of new addition to the home, MacMeans says, getting answers to questions quickly and easily is the key to a successful installation. "A lot of companies will come in, install the door, hand you an invoice, and call it a day," she says. "Because we're not a franchisee of some major national brand, we can give you a true estimate of the kind of garage door you need." More about their installation and repair can be found in this collection of garage door articles on Discount Door Service.

MacMeans says there are a number of factors for homeowners should consider when they're installing a new garage door. "The Consumer Product Safety Commission says that 20,000 people go to the ER every year due to garage door incidents," she notes. "Fixing a garage door should be done by professionals who know the ins and outs of the hundreds of moving parts involved. We can diagnose your problem and get it fixed as quickly as possible."

Founded in 1999, Discount Door Service has been serving the residents of Tucson and the surrounding areas with the installation and repair of garage doors. The staff knows how important it is to offer quality and value to every customer, and the company's positive reputation has been established in many positive reviews online, including Dru's 5-star Yelp testimonial.

Dru concluded her Yelp review of Discount Door Service by saying, "We highly recommend Discount Door because we know you won't be disappointed."

MacMeans says, "Tucson is one of the best places to live, and we're more than happy to hear from our satisfied customers. We hope to serve them with garage door installation and repair for years to come."
