April 05, 2019

A home that is flooded, or is dealing with consequences of flooding that has been cleaned up, will find itself suffering for a number of reasons. One of the most significant reasons will come to those who are eager to sell. Those who need to sell in the most straightforward fashion possible will find it almost impossible to sell anything that is flooded, or is dealing with the damage caused by flooding. This is certainly true for anyone who attempts to sell their property on the traditional Fort Meyers real estate market.

For those find themselves in such a position, Dependable Homebuyers has proven to be invaluable. Owned and founded by Evan Roberts, the company has built a formidable reputation for buying homes of all shapes, sizes, and conditions. This is naturally something that can be applied to homes that have been damaged by flooding to one degree or another.

It is a common misconception that homes damaged by flooding are no longer viable possibilities on the real estate market. It is also a misconception that in order to sell such a property, thousands of dollars in repairs must be made. This is perhaps true for homes that opt for traditional Fort Meyers real estate listings, but it is not true for homeowners who decide to sell their properties through Dependable Homebuyers. This is perhaps one of the most significant reasons as to why the company has found a controversial response from some realtors and real estate companies. These are individuals who often refuse to sell a home that is not in the finest possible condition. Dependable Homebuyers has ruffled feathers for simply offering transparency and viable options to those who do not have any other possibilities in front of them.

Flooding can be extremely destructive. It can cause damage to walls, floors, ceilings, electrical wiring, and even the foundation itself. A homeowner who wants to sell through traditional channels will likely have to address these things, before it is even possible to sell the home to potential buyers.

Dependable Homebuyers goes in a different direction from most realtors and real estate companies. Over the past several years, the company has become highly regarded for making things easy on homeowners who need to sell in the most straightforward fashion possible. Their reputation for buying hoarder homes, foreclosure homes, and other properties has become impressive, to say the least.

The benefits of going through alternate channels can make for a considerable list. The traditional real estate market can really only benefit those who have the best possible properties. Everyone else will find themselves struggling for weeks, if not months, before they find a potential buyer. This can be a problem for those who need to sell and move on with their lives as quickly as possible. It can also be a problem for those who need to make as much money as possible from the sale of their property.

With Dependable Homebuyers, the homeowner can sell their property in the most straightforward, beneficial fashion possible. Read the recent press release they published at <https://www.pressadvantage.com/story/26778-fort-meyers-homebuyers-purchasing-homes-with-good-or-bad-tenants>.
