

New Inventory Tool In ManageByStats Suite Of Software Tools For Amazon Sellers

May 06, 2019

Today ManageByStats has announced a new inventory tool. This new tool runs within the MBS suite of seller software, and allows users to quickly and easily control the visibility of products in their inventory list. This additional level of flexibility adds to the customization options available in the existing ManageByStats Inventory Management tool. MBS provides multiple software tools for Amazon sellers in a single login, including sales and customer management, inventory, automated emails, Amazon sponsored ads, keywords and more.

“Before this new tool the user needed to look at and edit products one at a time in order to make this selection,” says CEO of ManageByStats, Philip Jepsen. “Now we provide this info in a simple column available in the inventory view, allowing users to sort and select which products to include when viewing and working with their inventory.”

ManageByStats is a comprehensive suite of software tools for Amazon sellers. Inventory is one of the functions it simplifies by bringing info from Amazon into a single, cohesive interface, where connections can be made between all aspects of an Amazon business -- from orders to customers, inventory and all other relevant info. MBS brings everything together in one place, with clarity.

“As I’ve said from Day One, our goal is to provide the tools Amazon sellers need to manage their business,” says Mister Jepsen. “Amazon either doesn’t make this data easy to get to, or simply does not provide the features and tools to get it done. At MBS we do, and this new option adds more flexibility to our robust suite.”
