

The Real Estate Market in Nashville is Booming and Dependable Homebuyers Isn't Surprised

August 01, 2019

A recent report by Dependable Homebuyers shows that the real estate market in Nashville, Tennessee, rose by significant margins in 2018. Evan Roberts, spokesperson for Dependable Homebuyers, expects the strong real estate market to continue in 2019 and into 2020. He cites an increased demand for starter homes and other affordable properties in Nashville.

Dependable Homebuyers also sees the importance of educating potential buyers about investing in Nashville real estate and how to navigate rising interest rates. The company firmly believes that a successful real estate business relies on outside investments for an area to truly flourish. Read the article in full at

According to Mr. Roberts, Nashville's booming real estate market is partly due to the popularity of the proclaimed "Music City" of the south. Roberts says, "Nashville's real estate is vastly underpriced compared to bigger cities in the South East. There is tremendous value for out-of-state investors to renovate homes for profit in Nashville."

The residents of Nashville are optimistic about the city's growth. Residents offer southern hospitality to their new neighbors purchasing their first home or moving their family to the vibrant city for job opportunities. Residents note that neighborhoods that were previously ridden with boarded-up houses have been revitalized thanks to Dependable Homebuyers.

Dependable Homebuyers is a "We Buy Homes" company that specializes in buying homes from homeowners without going through a real estate agency. Homeowners wanting to sell their homes are often burdened by additional fees that take money out of their hands, such as a percentage of the sale going to the agent for commission, closing costs, appraisal fees, etc.

Using traditional means to sell a home can take up to a year because the market is oversaturated with more sellers than buyers. Dependable Homebuyers buys the homes directly from the seller. They are the buyer. Homeowners don't have to wait for a buyer to be approved for a loan or deal with the appraisals or repairs.

The Dependable Homebuyers company has its own inspection process that can be completed in a day after the homeowner contacts them to potentially sell their home. If the home is in need of repairs, Dependable Homebuyers use their own contractors after the sale is complete. Homeowners don't need to make repairs or renovations before selling the home.

Once the inspection is complete, a cash offer will be presented to the homeowner. They are under no obligation to accept the cash offer, but if they do, the money will be theirs within ten business days.

Dependable Homebuyers offers homeowners the option of selling the home and then staying on as a tenant. The company strives to bring affordable housing to Nashville and other cities across the country.

Unlike other cities that are seeing a slowed down real estate market, Roberts and his associates are busier than ever, especially in transitional neighborhoods like Nashville. He touts the city's safety and stability to potential investors looking to invest in Nashville's booming real estate market.
