Evan Roberts, the owner of the real estate investment company, says that timing is extremely significant for any type of deal. Real estate sales take painfully long to close. Finding a buyer is a monumental challenge. Getting an acceptable closing offer is another daunting task. All these are uncertainties and there is an unpredictable delay for most sellers. His company aims to eliminate all these variables by taking full control of how a sale pans out. He says that homeowners do not have to rely solely on realtors and listing services. His company buys houses outright and pays a fair price without charging any commission. The firm also takes care of the closing cost. Sellers can secure the best offer in a few days and liquidate the asset in a week to ten days. Here's a recent press release they published.

Mr. Kelly is not the first client to leave a five star review for Evan Roberts and his team at Dependable Homebuyers.
