

The LGBT Community Can Now Find Love On A Secure Platform

December 17, 2019

MeetPositives has striven to create a platform where people living with lifelong infections can find friendship, companionship, love and romance. Over the years, the website has evolved and has recently made things easier for the gay community. The website has introduced gay dating services that include a gay dating community where users can discuss issues that affect them. This support community helps people cope with being gay and having a life long STD infection. On the site there is HIV gay dating, HPV gay dating, and Herpes gay dating. The site also has a boatload of information about different STDs and how to cope.

According to the site, "The main goal of Meetpositives.com is to give positive LGBT singles a chance to date again. Dating is easier and more fun on this STD dating platform. STD infections affect everyone regardless of their sexual orientation. However, gays are at a greater risk of getting infected, especially when it comes to HIV. Statistics shows that HIV and syphilis infections among the LGBT community are on the rise, which is why it's important that they become educated on these facts. People with multiple sex partners and those who engage in sexual activity without protection are at the greatest risk."
