Koehlinger Plumbing, a plumbing repair specialist in Villa Park, IL has added a new blog to their website. The company which provides a variety of plumbing services, felt their previous content was not enough. The new blog helps give consumers tips to lower energy bills, reducing energy usage while being green. Current posts can be viewed at http://www.koehlingerplumbing.com/category/plumbing-tips.

"People come to our website for a variety of reasons," says Jimmy Ashley from Koehlinger Plumbing. "At Koehlinger Plumbing, we want to meet all of the needs of our community. Whether they are looking for a reliable plumber to quickly come to their house and solve their plumbing issues, looking for information on how to's, or just looking for good advise, we want our potential clients to have access to the very best information possible."

With over 20 years of providing exceptional service, Koehlinger Plumbing is known for providing quality service, being very responsive and reasonably priced. Additionally, their plumbers are available 24 hours a day for emergency plumbing situations.

Customers who have used them in the past have left positive reviews all over the internet. "We needed their services to address a few issues in our home prior to selling. They did a great job, knew what they were doing, worked quickly and were very pleasant! They even came in under his original estimate. I'd highly recommend and would use them again," says Mary E. from Lombard, IL.

Viewers of the blog can expect multiple timely articles discussing the latest plumbing trends every month. Currently, you will find tips on how to prevent your pipes from freezing and tips to reducing your heating bill as well as reducing your utility bills. While the company does focus on providing quality service at great rates, they have recently added a Facebook page, https://www.facebook.com/Koehlinger-Plumbing-126870217367825/?fref=nf where viewers are encouraged to 'like' to receive valuable coupons and updates to the blog.
